Salutation of the Dawn

Listen to Exhortation of the Dawn!

Look to this Day! For it is Life,

The very Life of Life.

In its brief course lie all the Verities

And Realities of your Existence;

The Bliss of Growth,

The Glory of Action,

The Splendor of Beauty;

For Yesterday is but a Dream,

And Tomorrow is only a Vision;

But Today well lived

Makes every Yesterday a Dream of Happiness,

And every Tomorrow a Vision of Hope.

Look well therefore to this Day!

Such is the Salutation of Dawn.

Community Tribute

In this year when the community of Cary helps Cary High School celebrate her fiftieth anniversary, we find it fitting to recount the history of our school in picture and story.

Since our community has always stood behind our school and has believed in the best education for our youth, we welcome this opportunity to give credit for the effort that has been made through the years to provide the best education possible and to picture for the community what the school is doing to develop well-rounded citizens.

In order to understand Cary's enduring support of education we glance backward through the years to a small crossroads called Page's Siding, where only a sawmill was situated.

Since the first academy was founded in 1870, the citizens of Cary have believed in the premise that "a good design for education is one that fulfills the needs of a particular community." Such is the spirit of the community which, on April 3, 1907, became the site of the first state-supported public high school in North Carolina. The number of buildings has since increased from one wooden building to seven fine brick buildings.

Today this thriving township, located on main thoroughfares, offers excellent educational advantages to all and its progressive citizens are constantly interested in improving the community.

True to the traditions of our forefathers, through a recent bond issue and a supplementary school tax, the citizens of Cary voted to expand school facilities to fill the changing needs of the youth of the community. By 1960, a new high school, offering the best education possible for tomorrow's citizens of the space age, will be ready for occupancy.

We dedicate to Cary citizens, past and present, this book conveying not only the record of these past 50 years of progress but also our preparation of the present and hopes of the future. With sincerest appreciation we say thank you to the community and people whose beliefs and efforts will serve those still to come.

MR. E. L. MIDDLETON

Principal of Cary Academy from 1896-1908.

The entire school gathers in front of the first school building erected on the present site.

Walter Hines Page did his share of removing stumps from the grounds of the new Cary Academy for infraction of rules. From a log cabin, the school moved in 1870 into a two-story frame building erected on the present site, and removing stumps served the double purpose of discipline and landscaping.

Through the efforts of E. L. Middleton, enthusiastic principal in 1896, the school soon became well known through newspaper advertising and an attractive catalogue. One of Mr. Middleton's strongest supporters was Dr. J. M. Templeton, school committeeman, who served in this capacity for more than twenty-five years. During Mr. Middleton's career, he gave direction to scores of young people and sent many scholars to colleges and universities, later to become numbered among North Carolina's leading citizens. The original building was enlarged to provide dormitory rooms for boys. Girls who attended the school from surrounding areas continued to board in private homes.

On June 1, 1908, after twenty years in the educational field, Mr. Middleton became Sunday School Secretary for the Baptist State Convention, where he did outstanding work for nearly twenty years.

HIGH SCHOOL ESTABLISHED IN NORTH CAROLINA, APRIL 3, 1907

In 1907, Mr. Middleton and the school trustees decided to offer their holdings in the Cary School to the state, in order to be partially supported by the state treasury and to be known as a state-supported high school. Cary School then became the first public school in the state.

E. L. Middleton remained as head of the school through the following year. Succeeding him in 1908 was Mr. M. B. Dry. Among the noteworthy advances under his leadership was the erection of a new brick building to accommodate the rapidly increasing number of boarding students.

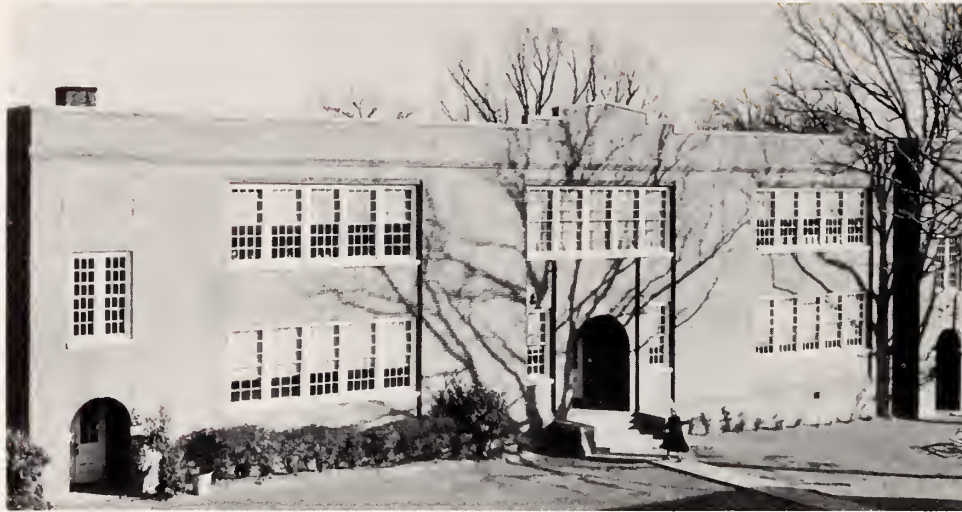

In that same school year, 1913-1914, the Farm Life Department was established. This department provided for the teaching of agriculture and home economics.

The Frank Page Dormitory for girls was erected two years later, taking the place of the old wooden structure which was burned in that year. In 1920 a brick dormitory for the boys was completed, making possible the accommodation of 200 boarding students annually.

Pathway of Progress

THE DRY BUILDING
Present Elementary School

The completion of the Walter Hines Page Building for vocational education, providing for the science and teacher-training departments also, marked the fifth important event during Mr. Dry's principalship.

The department of teacher training was added by the State Department of Education in 1922. During the next two years public school music and commercial subjects were offered as full-time courses.

The J. M. Templeton building for physical education, built in 1925, made provision for systematic physical exercise for all the school. The elementary department of the school was standardized in that same year by the State Department of Education.

When Cary School was consolidated in 1927 with Morrisville, Mt. Vernon and Goodwin, the sixth brick building, the Marcus Dry Building was constructed. State and Federal aid for the commercial department was begun this same year, making it possible to employ a full-time teacher for the work. This placed the benefits of the commercial subjects within reach of all high school pupils, particularly past graduates.

The special school tax was abandoned by an act of the 1933 legislature and Cary, Mt. Vernon Goodwin, and Swift Creek schools were consolidated into Cary Consolidated District No. 1, supported exclusively by county, state and federal funds. School consolidation and bus transportation closed the dormitories to boarding students that year.

In 1935, besides the regular courses, the school offered instruction in agriculture, home economics, commercial subjects, piano, violin, band music, expression and art, with special attention given to dramatics and athletics.

During the lean depression years, 1936-1940, the variety of activities at Cary High School was limited. The publication of the yearbook was suspended, and the graduation exercises were very plain.

With the forties came World War II, when many students left Cary to take their places in the armed forces and other positions of service.

The years following the war were filled with achievement. As if to make up for the bleak years, the school activities increased, student enrollment grew, and spirits were high.

This is the time of achievement. Today, when the world is crying for people with education and knowledge, Cary High School is increasing the opportunities for students to gain these qualities.

Educational progress has been the keynote of the ten years of Mr. Paul W. Cooper's administration. The faculty has increased from nineteen to fifty-two teachers and the student body has more than doubled in size. The curriculum has broadened to include dramatics, journalism, history of religion, advanced mathematics, chemistry and physics offered yearly, Spanish, distributive education and driver education. The Student Council has been reactivated.

Under the leadership of Mr. Cooper, the new primary building, gymnasium, and cafeteria have been added and other buildings renovated. The lighted football field and the new gymnasium have aided the development of an outstanding athletic program.

LIFE

What is a school? A pupil, a teacher, and a building, perhaps. But more than that, a world in miniature—a world of growing up, meeting new people, learning to get along with yourself and others, adjusting to new experiences—a world of information; information about English, chemistry, Latin, and distributive education—a world of memories; memories of class rings, Junior-Seniors, homecoming games and dances, locker meetings between periods—of despair, excitement, hope. A school is a heritage; a heritage of education for all American youth, and the right to grow toward responsible citizenship. What is a school? A design, perhaps—a design for learning to live as free men.

STUDENT COUNCIL ELECTION

We exercise the right to choose responsible student leaders.

UNITED STATES HISTORY TELECAST

The right to express one's opinion in a free land.

We are Americans. Free Americans. We, the young citizens of Cary, have many opportunities to practice the roles we will play as mature members of a free society. Through the Student Council, we have the opportunity to select student leaders on the basis of their qualifications for the work they are to do. We have opportunities to observe governmental procedures first hand; to participate in orderly group discussion and problem-solving in areas of major interest to us; to explore vocational choices with parents and teachers. We gain recognition for the good citizenship qualities we display.

As we participate in vital and varied activities, we become aware of our place in an increasingly complex world. When we assume the responsibilities of mature citizens, we will be prepared for them, through the influences and experiences offered us at Cary High School.

Responsibilities and Relations

Practice of good citizenship brings selection of the "citizen-of-the-month" by the student body.

Informed students make responsible citizens.

Cary High School became the first Wake County member of the Southern Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges in 1954. Ruth Ann Pleasants, Miss Rice, and Mrs. King discuss common school problems of interest to students, teachers, and parents.

Correct procedure leads to orderly discussion and friendlier relations.

Good Health,

FOOD FOR A FINE COMPLEXION

Glowing health begins with the proper diet as Carolyn Rook points out to a group of young Homemakers.

"Vim, vigor, and vitality." Good health is the foundation of joyous, zestful living. This belief pervades the entire school program at Cary High. In the cafeteria we put into practice what we have learned about nutrition and good food habits in health and home economics. In the gymnasium and on the playing field, we engage in gymnastics and games that add to our strength and endurance and also provide for active social life and leisure time activities. In every facet of our life, we follow the rules of cleanliness and neatness as guide posts to good grooming.

Linda Cole recognizes the value of a well balanced lunch.

Poise and posture, as ably demonstrated by Judy Liles and Ann Bragassa.

Good grooming is part of a charming, happy, healthy personality.

Sound minds in healthy bodies.

Physical Fitness and First Aid

As we participate in clean-up programs, we become aware of the importance of each individual's part in the school and community program of healthful living. We learn and practice the basic rules of first aid and safety.

A healthy person is a happy person. Participation in the broad health-building activities at Cary High aids us in achieving good health and prepares us for responsibility for family and community health. With this comes extra dividends of well-being, charm, mental alertness and the assurance of a future of physical enjoyment.

"NOTHING VENTURED, NOTHING GAINED"

By venturing, the alert and enthusiastic students at Cary High gain knowledge of the skills and personal qualities needed for useful employment. Even as freshmen we preview careers by evaluating and investigating various types of occupations and the preparation that is necessary for them and match them with our own interests and abilities. Later we have opportunities for achieving marketable skills for the business world and supervised work experience. As we learn these skills and work on-the-job, we gain a new feeling of confidence and independence, a new, broader world opens with new interests and new people and we find satisfaction through the self-expression of work.

Practical homemaking experience is gained by Aultney Jordan, Charlene Tomlin, and Jeanie Gillen.

What is a family? A family is one of life's strongest bonds. It is the place we first feel a sense of security and belonging. It is the first place we learn to live with and understand others, to share, to assume responsibility, to be cooperative, and to accept others as they are.

Successful family living doesn't just "happen" but requires careful planning and intelligent behavior. Here at Cary High School, we receive help in learning to mix those ingredients of understanding, cooperation, and thoughtfulness necessary for happy and wholesome family living.

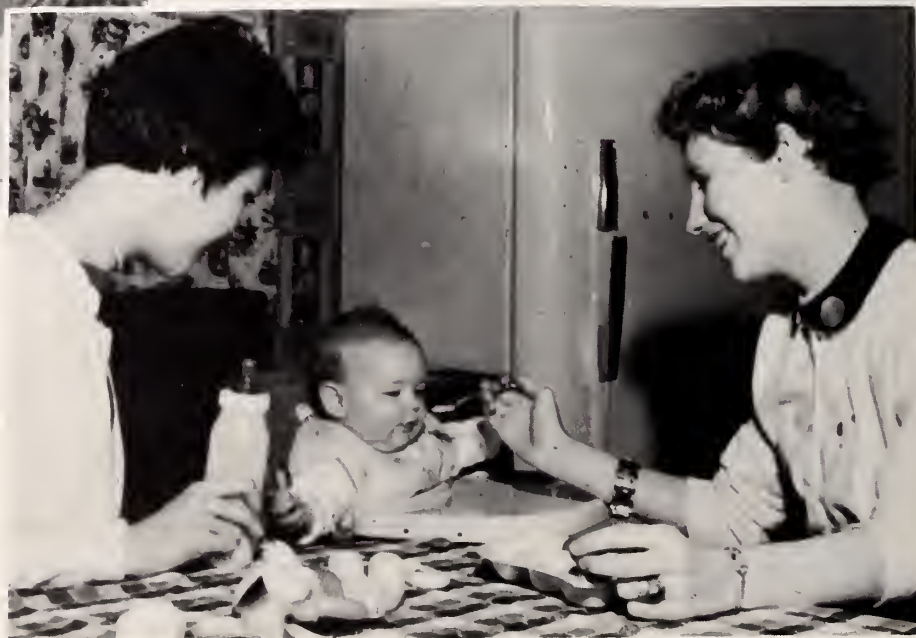

As we become competent in homemaking tasks we better our chance for happiness in the family now and in the future.

"Time," said the Greek philosopher Theophrastus, "is the most valuable thing a man can spend." Because of our improved standard of living, we Americans have more leisure time to spend than ever before. With boundless energy and unlimited capacity for giving, we Cary students learn to spend our leisure time income wisely in a varied and constructive program of activities. We are members of groups that give service to others, that have common hobby interests, of sports groups and vocational interests groups. We serve on committees, on club projects, on program and party planning groups. By participation in a well-balanced program of activities, we are learning to become well rounded individuals. By sampling various ways of spending our leisure time we are learning more about ourselves and enjoyable activities that can mean a lifetime of pleasure. By mingling, conversing, planning and working together, we form wide friendships and catch contagious school spirit that comes from many working for a common cause. Such is our constructive use of our leisure time income that we reap rich dividends in happiness which come from a purposeful and abundant life.

Good Citizenship

The Student Self-Government was organized in 1919 by Miss Lillian Killingsworth, who had made a study of student self-government throughout other schools. Being impressed with its possibilities, she used the system in the girls' dormitory and later, because of its great success, it was extended to the rest of the school. This was the basis of the present day Student Council, which was reorganized in 1951 by Mrs. Esther Kell Mitchell, who was adviser for five years.

The Student Council of today, whose members represent the entire student body, encourages participation of all students in school activities; fosters advancement in scholarship and school spirit; strives to develop the democratic ideals in the students which will prepare them for living usefully in a democracy and to promote the general welfare of the school.

Guidance toward useful and satisfying occupations is the purpose of the Distributive Education Club, formed in 1954 by Mrs. Booker, the present sponsor. Under the helpful eye of the coordinator, employer-employee relationships are well-balanced and harmonious. Through the co-operation of the businessmen of the community, a student work program is developed in which the student may exercise a variety of skills and his ability to co-operate with others. The Distributive Education Club is a vital link between the worlds of education and business. It offers the students the promise of America—the right to work in an occupation of his own choice.

Science, and Satellites

From a small group of students who formed a science club in 1926, the present Physimetry Club has grown to its present membership of 55. In this space age, the Club has as its purpose the fostering of intellectual development through the study of science. For the past several years, members of the club have won honors in the North Carolina Science Fair. During the International Geophysical Year, the Moonwatchers group has the additional opportunity of tracking and reporting earth satellites. The Physimetry Club subscribes to the belief that in the world of tomorrow, more scientific knowledge will be necessary for man's survival.

Expression

The desire to create is a powerful force in the lives of many of us; a force which impels us to mull over ideas, to use our imagination, to experiment with new combinations of familiar elements. The original thinker has changed the course of mankind: without him we would continue to plod along in the pattern of the past.

Creative self-expression has long been a part of the activities at Cary High School. Two organizations, the Creative Writing Club and the Dramatics Club, both under the sponsorship of Mrs. Marley, have as their purpose the development of creative talent and the provision of an outlet for creative expression. Through original composition and creative drama, members of these two clubs have gained national recognition for original efforts.

"Los Alegros," the Spanish club now in its third year, endeavors to give the students of Spanish many opportunities to increase their knowledge of our neighbors across the border, their people, customs, and folklore. The Pan American assembly given by Los Alegros interests students in colorful dances, songs, legends, and religious fiestas of our friends in the "manana" land to the south of us. Friendliness and cooperation come with understanding and tolerance.

The world of books is a fascinating one. Library assistants rediscover this truth year after year. Cary High School realized the value of a central library long before educational leaders considered it "the heart of the school." From a modest beginning of a few hundred volumes donated by interested citizens and bought with money obtained from P.T.A. drives, the library has grown to house a collection of more than 4000 volumes and subscribes to 50 magazines. Without the valuable assistance of voluntary librarians it would be difficult to give adequate service to everyone.

Rare is the student who does not take advantage of its opportunities for pleasure reading, research, or "just sittin' and thinkin'."

A glow of satisfaction comes from rendering service to others. The patrol boys learn early the pleasure of this satisfaction as they see that safety regulations are carried out. The bus drivers have the task of safely transporting two thirds of our school population. At the end of each year, safety awards are presented to those who have discharged their duties well. By performing the myriad detailed duties that are necessary to a well-run organization, the office staff renders an invaluable service to the school. Receiving visitors, answering telephones, collecting absence slips and typing absentee lists are only a few of the duties that they perform each day. No service is without reward. The office staff gains practical experience of great value in the business world.

Come what may, the paper must go to press. The nature of the ECHO has varied through the years. At times it has had a section devoted to original composition and at others the final issue has replaced the annual with a group picture of the seniors and senior honors. During lean years it has been mimeographed. There have been rare free issues. It has been supported by subscription rates and by advertisements by local businessmen. But through it all, it has been "our paper" carrying the news of "our school."

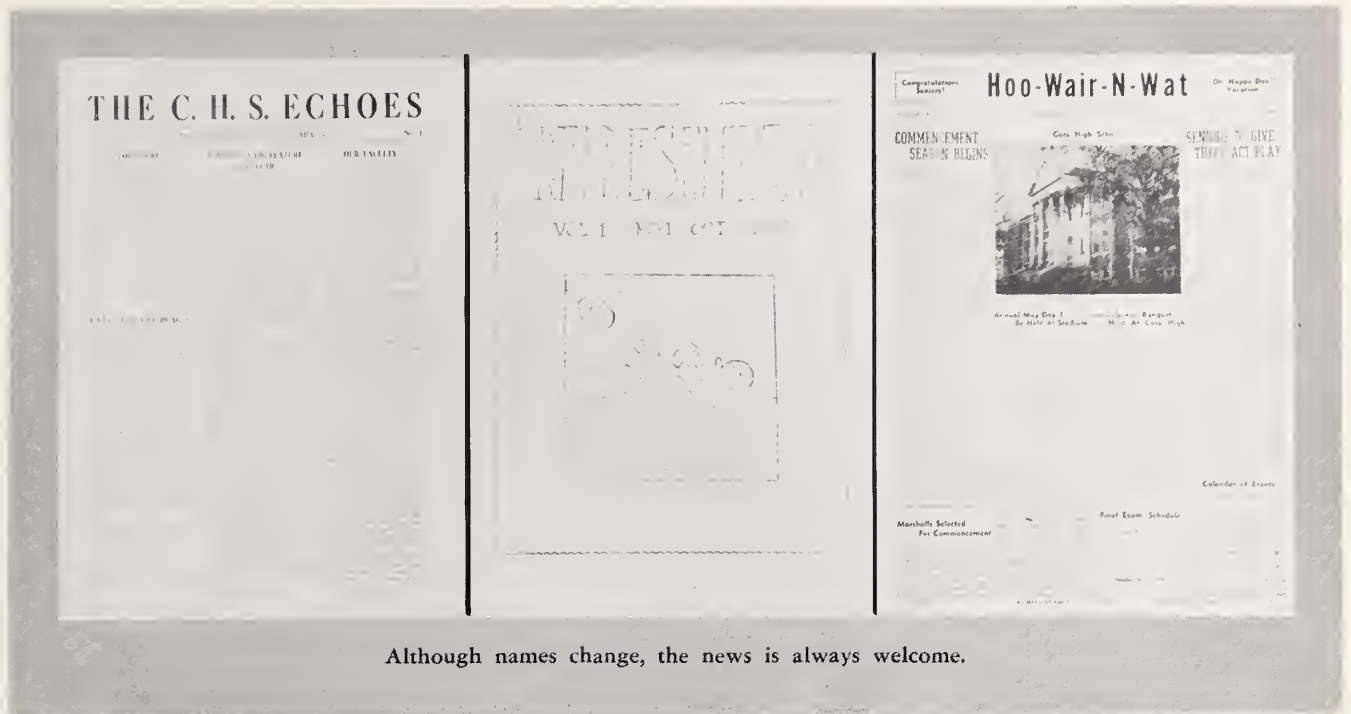

Fiftieth Anniversary issue

Through the Years

"The ECHO'S here!"

The ECHO has finally come into its own. Various groups in the past have had the responsibility of issuing the school paper: the business education department, the junior English classes, the Senior English classes and combinations of all of these. This year it has its proper niche. Journalism has been added to those courses offered the students and there training and experience in the publication of the school paper is given. Once again, after years of mimeographed papers, we have printed editions, making possible pictures as well as type.

Although names change, the news is always welcome.

From a thin paper-backed edition in 1915, the Cary High School yearbook has grown to a one hundred and fifty page volume depicting the many phases of school life. During the early years of its publications, the CHSITE, as it was first named, was filled with views of buildings, classrooms and groups of students in stiff, formal poses. Like other school publications, it had its financial troubles. Because of insufficient funds, its publication was suspended during the depression and war years and the final issue of the school paper replaced it. When publication was resumed in 1947, for one brief year it was called the ECHO and contained not only pictures and honors of the seniors but also original poems, essays, and stories. In 1948 the new name of YRAC was chosen and publication yearly has continued. The Cary yearbooks are fascinating reflections of the change and growth of the school itself and the economy and social structure of the community.

Off to the parade!

Music and song have always been dear to the hearts of Cary High Students. A Glee Club was organized in 1920 under the direction of Mr. N. G. Woodlief; a year later a ten piece band was formed and public school music was added in 1922.

The present band, chorus, and majorettes have a full schedule of football games, parades, assemblies and concerts. It is a thrilling spectacle to see and hear the high stepping majorettes and snappy drum major in precision routines—original and sparkling halftime performances—harmonious voices in concert—martial music that sets the feet tapping and the heart swelling with pride.

From the very first year that organized athletics were introduced at Cary, they have played an important part in school and community life. Baseball was, for many years, the major sport, until first baseball, then football were included in the athletic spotlight. All sports were played out-of-doors until 1935 when the first gymnasium was built. Basketball games were no longer at the mercy of the weather and night games could be held. An improved football field was added a few years later with WPA help, and, in 1951, it was equipped with powerful lights, making night games possible. A new gymnasium, which doubled seating capacity and other facilities, was erected in 1952. With the always enthusiastic backing of the entire student body, our White Imps have played the game with championship spirit and good sportsmanship.

Touchdown Bound

Tri-captains: David Mustian, George Liggon, George Sloan.

Over the past few years football has been a very popular sport and it has always been well-supported. Some of our teams have been shining stars in Cary's illustrious past while other were only dim memories, but the Cary teams have never let us down. The "58" team is well-balanced and has proved its willingness to fight. Football will never fade from the history of Cary.

RIGHT: Dave Rickman combines his running ability with his defensive backing to put on one of his great running exhibitions during this past season. He has been relied on many times this year to pull the Imps through their defensive barriers. BELOW: Cary has always had the "never die" attitude which is illustrated in this picture. Cary's defensive string proved they could back up the team with all their strength and ability.

Teamwork, enthusiasm and an undaunted spirit characterizes the Cary 1957-1958 basketball teams. In their forward march toward glorious heights, the Cary White Imps have stood the test of skill and sportsmanship like veterans. The varsity boys have fought their way to a fine season. Though the Cary girls have not been as victorious, they have maintained the fighting spirit. We hope the future Cary teams will have all the fight and spirit which our 1957-1958 teams have had.

BASEBALL TEAM OF 1908

Walter Gardner, scorer; Jim Hilliard, M. Crutchfield, president; Coach Knight, John Mayes, Judson Knott, Finch, Thurman Knott, Russell Broughton, Critcher, Walter King, Elby King, Pickett.

In 1906, Cary High School organized two athletic teams—a ten man baseball team and a four man tennis team. Although the equipment was scarce, sports participation was encouraged to promote the health of the students. By 1914, Cary had established baseball and track for the boys and basketball and tennis for the girls. This was followed by the construction of two outdoor basketball courts in 1916.

Football made its initial appearance at Cary in 1917. Year after year, it has progressed in popularity as well as in participation. In 1925, the first gymnasium, seating 500 spectators and costing $12,000, was built on the south-west corner of the campus, where the remodeled Home Economics building now stands. The Athletic Club introduced boxing and wrestling at Cary and bouts were usually staged in the gymnasium at the regular club period.

The Cary boys' basketball team won the North Carolina Class A championship in 1939. This was the first state championship Cary had won up until that time, and marked the beginning of the winning of many more honors in athletics. In 1947, the girls' basketball team won the Wake County championship. The boys' basketball team of 1954 went even farther to win the North Carolina Class A basketball championship. The 1953-54 football team won the Wake County championship and in 1956 the White Imps climaxed the season with the State Class A football championship.

In 1956-57, Cary moved up to Class AA. The competition was tougher, but the 1957-58 season found Cary once again building its football and basketball power as well as its prospects for the future.

SCHOOL

Times change. Patterns vary. Variations in patterns are reflected in the classrooms as the school endeavors to meet the educational needs of youth. Time was, readin' and cipherin' were adequate for a useful life. The educational tools needed in today's world are more complex. As the economic pattern of the area has shifted, the curriculum has expanded. Although the accent at Cary, as always, is on the essentials, the school program has broadened to include business and distributive occupations methods and careful college counseling and preparation. Through a constantly adjusting curriculum, the Cary school community faces the challenge of preparing an informed, responsible citizenry, aware of its traditions and destiny, to help build and preserve our democracy.

With knowledge comes understanding and tolerance. Through education, ours is an ever-widening world. Knowledge of our own past helps us to understand the importance of our place in the present-day world.

Problems, equations, theorems, logarithms—from daily living to complicated calculations, from the housewife to the scientist, mathematics is an essential skill. Without it, we can't balance our household budget or place a satellite in outer space. High school students of today are introduced at an early age to the need for mathematical knowledge through allowances, part-time jobs, social security and income tax, through jets, earth satellites and the prospects of interplanetary travel. The four years of math offered at Cary prepare the students for tackling the mathematical problems of everyday life and for entry into advanced mathematical study.

Advanced mathematics students see practical applications of their science. Lowell Ward, Susie Doggett, Russell Philbrick and Jerry Dickinson study computer at North Carolina State College.

In class and in laboratory, we have opportunities to explore processes of plant and animal life, to understand our own life processes, to gain knowledge about earth and sky and atmosphere and the technical "know-how" of today's scientific world. Armed with this knowledge, we can work for a world at peace, an abundant world of better health and adventuring into scientific endeavors which will benefit mankind.

The chorus presents its Christmas program in assembly.

Hands clap in rhythm—feet skip to the musical beat—voices sing of "Them Bones"—bodies put words into action—rhythm bands play—music fills the air—the music of the Public School Music Department at Cary. Someone has said that music is the universal language. Certainly it stimulates the creative urge, helps to cultivate poise and grace, and furnishes an emotional outlet. Participation in and appreciation of music in its many forms can enrich many leisure hours.

Music Fills the Air

MR. JAMES H. JOHNSON

University of Texas, M.M.
Director of Instrumental Music
Hobbies: Tennis, golf, records

Deep-throated drums thump—horns pipe and squeak and sputter—can this be music? Yes—music in the making. Hours of practice and drill result in sparkling performances on the field, in the parade, and on the stage. Gone are the pipes and squeaks and sputters and in their stead is stirring band music that quickens the pulses—the music of a band that has grown from a ten-piece group in 1922 to its present size of 52 enthusiastic members.

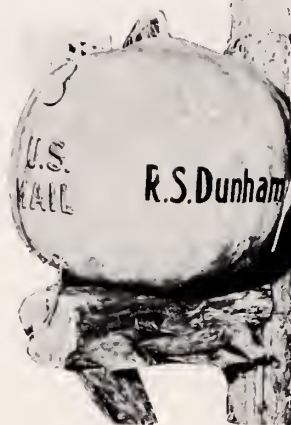

The music theory class listens to records as part of their training.

Hours of practice are necessary for smooth performance.

Survival

North Carolina State College, B.S., M.S.
Agriculture
Sponsor, F.F.A.
Hobby: Living life at its fullest

Certain knowledges are necessary for the survival and security of the human race. One is the production of food. Another is the provision of shelter from the elements. Our agriculture department provides not only the basic training in this survival knowledge, but also the improved methods that have been developed through the years that result in greater conservation and production, higher standards of living and an increased age span.

Sciences

First Home Economics class

From cave fires to atomic ovens, the home fires keep the pot boiling. The family unit is the foundation of human society. Family units make up a community, and communities make up a nation. A nation is as strong as its family units. The home economics department devotes its program to developing in the youth of today an understanding and appreciation of the importance of homemaking as a foundation for a happy and useful life.

Cary's teen-age students have, let's say, fifty years of life ahead of them. Of their waking hours, they will spend about one third of their time on the job. Our vocational program, based on the types of work available in the area, offers education for the business world and training in retailing, wholesaling, and services through classroom instruction coordinated with supervised work experience.

Barbara Eakley and Marion Jones practice for typing efficiency.

Our Potential

Counselors: Mrs. Jane Smith, Mrs. Mary Ellen Booker, Miss Barbara Anne Rice, and Mr. R. S. Dunham.

Mrs. Jane Smith discusses scholarship opportunities with Madeline Shaw.

What of the future? Shall I go to college? What college shall I attend? To help us answer some of these questions, our counselors give us an opportunity to preview the possibilities during "College Day," when we can hold consultation with representatives from various colleges and gather information to help us plot our courses.

Each year new classes and new faces repeat the cycle—freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors. Fundamentally teenagers in every era are the same; only customs change and shift. Slang of the day becomes outmoded, dances change names, food fads differ, styles follow a fashion cycle, but students are still shy, dreamy, boisterous and energetic bundles of storm and stress and conflicting loyalties, searching for security, recognition, and independence. One day they are skimming cloud high and the next they plummet to the depths of despair. Someone has said that a student is like a safe—the right combination gets at the riches within. With patience and encouragement, we try to meet his needs and find each individual combination which will provide him with the opportunity to grow into useful maturity.

William Jones, as Father in Life With Father has troubles with love and money.

Shy, but somewhat apprehensive, the students from Mount Vernon, Swift Creek, and Cary gathered in the auditorium that first day as freshmen to receive their instructions. The freshmen days were difficult at first, but under the guidance of our sponsors we soon felt at home. The upperclassmen helped us adjust by sponsoring a Christmas dance for us.

Our sophomore year was easier and passed quickly because we had adjusted to the school and students. Yet we felt lost. We weren't the "babies" that we were in our freshmen year, but we weren't the polished, assured people that the Juniors and Seniors seemed to be. The big event of that year was the election of class officers for the coming Junior year.

Janet Blackwood as Ophelia in Hamlet mourns her loss.

As we began our Junior year we heard a cry that we were soon to become familiar with—MONEY! We sold Christmas cards and candy and ran the concession, with the Junior-Senior Banquet and Dance ever present in our minds.

Dozens and dozens of red, red roses and millions of tiny stars were used for a "Moonlight and Roses" theme for the Junior-Senior. Night after night we worked, shaping the roses and stars. Then at last the long-awaited night arrived. Proudly we viewed our handiwork as we joyfully danced away the hours in the star-studded gym. Then all too soon the night was over—but we will hold forever in our hearts the memory of that glorious event; a highlight of our wonderful Junior year.

Jerry Dickinson portrays the Duke of Buckingham pleading for the love of Anne of Austria.

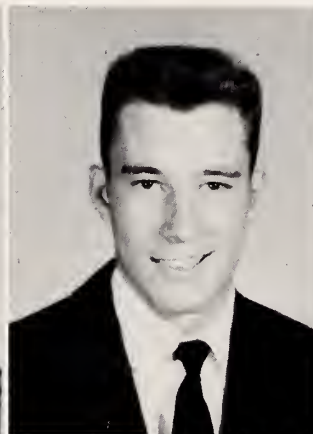

At last, the long awaited year arrived. We were Seniors! The days crept by as we waited and wished for our class rings. Finally they came!

Since money was the word, we got busy making preparations for some money-making projects. We sold magazines, buses and mailboxes, and sponsored football and basketball Homecoming, all with graduation and the senior trip in mind.

The days flew swiftly by as the senior play was announced and cast. We rehearsed the play, worked on our source themes, practiced for graduation, and tried to take care of the last-minute things.

Truly, this has been a senior year that we will remember forever.

Money-money-money! Even the fiftieth Junior Class at Cary High School has money problems if it is to continue the traditional Junior-Senior dinner-dance, which is "extra-special" this anniversary year. Each junior class strives to outdo the preceding class in presenting a better Junior-Senior dinner-dance.

This year we were challenged by both last year's class and the fact that the fiftieth anniversary requires "super doings."

In December, "The Perfect Idiot," a comedy, given under the direction of Miss Rice, was such an excellent vehicle for Junior talent that two performances were necessary and more money flowed into our coffers. Not only money was gained through this play, but also the participants in this activity gained invaluable experience in poise and dramatic ability. Others learned responsibility; all learned to work. The hours of practice were not all drudgery, for the play, being a comedy, often caused the characters and others to convulse into gales of laughter. This play was one of the highlights of this school year.

Why did we work so diligently? The answer unfolded the night of the Junior-Senior dinner-dance. Such an extravaganza of refreshment and beauty was never before enjoyed by any Seniors. We the Juniors were exceedingly proud of having presented a highly successful Junior-Senior dinner-dance on this the fiftieth anniversary of Cary High School.

ADVERTISERS

We patronize our advertisers. Without them, this yearbook, commemorating Cary High School's fiftieth year of operation as the first state supported high school, could never have been published. The support of these civic-minded business men of this area has given us the faith and encouragement necessary to carry out our dream of a pictorial history of our school. In turn we pledge to them our whole-hearted patronage as thanks for the wonderful backing they have given us in this ambitious endeavor.

One to grow on . . .

Good health is our business. We take a deep personal pride in watching the growth and development of youngsters raised on Pine State's good, health-giving milk and dairy foods. We feel great satisfaction in the knowledge that we contribute to the growth of the community as we do to the growth of its citizens.

We're proud of the fact that we're growing, too . . . that more and more families are asking for Pine State's pure, delicious milk, ice cream and other fine dairy foods.

We, the members of the 1958 YRAC staff, Would like to express our appreciation to all those people who have made the yearbook possible. We have worked long and hard to put together the biggest and best yearbook yet. However, our efforts would have been to no avail had it not been for the cooperation of Mr. Cooper, who found us a place to work when space was at a premium, and the understanding of the members of the Cary faculty, who were smilingly tolerant of picture schedules which interrupted classes. We thank Mr. Lorenz, who did a wonderful job of developing and printing our photography efforts. To the typists, many of whom were not members of the staff, go our heartfelt thanks for the hours of help they gave us. Our deepest gratitude goes to the members of the community, who gave freely of their time, information, and pictures to help us track down historical data. We can never repay our parents, whose understanding and sympathy and refreshments bolstered us when the going got really rough, and who ferried us thither and yon, early and late, without a murmur of protest.

This is it, then. This is your yearbook—the end result of our cooperative effort. We hope you are as proud of it as we are.
